A Railroad Track For The Eyes

The alphabetical and numerical notations which form the framework of the A-B-C Classified Section are in effect rail for the eyes to run upon. The eyes are guided by these notations just as the wheels of a train are guided by iron rails.

If the "rails" in this section were not safe and sound, this would not be a profitable route for you to travel.

But they are!

There's no reason why one's attention should jump the track. The route is plain and easy to follow. With ordinary caution one will never plow into a sandbank of perplexity or plunge into a ravine of doubt and despair.

This track is always clear and you have the right of way. All aboard for Opportunityland!

STATE SPENDING MORE THAN EVER IN ITS HISTORY

Remission of $7,000,000 Taxes Not Due to Economy, Zimmerman Says

La Crosse (AP)—Taxes in Wisconsin are gradually shifting from a direct levy on property to indirect levies, and the cost of government is "going up," Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman asserted at a dinner given by the Chamber of Commerce here today.

"The cost of government 'will continue to go up as long as we grow in wealth and population, and it is not true that the remission of the state taxes due to administrative economies," Mr. Zimmerman declared. He referred to the remission of the state's share of general property taxes, amounting to nearly $7,000,000, announced by Governor Blaine several months ago.

"Since the state will receive about $12,000,000 more from income taxes, gasoline tax, and fees than last year, we can understand how it is possible to remit $7,000,000 in direct taxes, but it is difficult to understand where all this great 'horrah' comes in. The new system may be more equitable than the old, time will tell, but the fact remains that the cost of government is going up, and it will continue to go up as long as we grow in wealth and population, and it is not true that the remission of the state tax is due to administrative economies."

The speaker read from the report of the tax commission which shows, he said, that the total cost of government in Wisconsin in 1929 was $112,768,910, and in 1923 $173,615,371.

Wisconsin has the kind of government that its people want, Secretary Zimmerman said.

Mild Weather Is Boon To Rural Mail Carriers

Weather cranks may find relief from the recent cold snap in the present mild weather, and others may be disgusted with slush and longing for a return of high pressure weather, but rural carriers are neither praising nor condemning. They are, however, congratulating themselves on their good fortune of being able to use automobiles so late in the year.

In past years, the carriers usually were compelled to abandon the automobile for its predecessor in rural delivery, the horse and sled, at least two weeks before Christmas. The horses would be plodding home about nightfall, but now the carriers are still able to complete their trips in about half the time. Last year the carriers used their cars most of the season, but last year also was an unusual year, as far as open roads was concerned.

While they are making their daily trips, they are casting anxious glances at the most susceptible spots on the roads in times of snow drifts. They report that farmers who see the advantage of keeping the roads open through the winter, are discussing the advisability of erecting snow fences at places where drifts usually are encountered. No one, however, seems ready to make the first move in the matter, as they believed that this is a matter for either the county or individual township to settle.

"Houses Made Into Homes"

January 6th-Tonight-- Is "Twelfth Night" and the End of the Holidays

JANUARY SIXTH—according to the old English custom—is "Twelfth Night," the end of the Christmas season. In Old England—Christmas decorations were burned on Twelfth Night for good luck throughout the year. The Sixth of January was the occasion of many festivities and the Twelfth Night Cake was memorable throughout the year.

PETTIBONE'S is celebrating Twelfth Night with the removal of the famous Pettibone Christmas Trees and other Christmas decorations. If old traditions are true—this observance of the proper ending of the Christmas season will bring us all special good luck throughout 1926.

ASK POLICE TO FIND C. W. STERLING FAMILY

Information on the whereabouts of the family of a Charles William Sterling is desired by Mrs. Mathilda Marcum of Huntington, W. Va., in a letter which she directed to the Appleton police department. Mrs. Marcum says that Sterling came to that city about two years ago and that he died there recently. She is of the understanding that his wife and children live in Appleton. The Appleton city directory of two years ago does not contain the name mentioned, however. Anyone who knows of the family is requested to notify Captain P. J. Vaughn of the police department.

NO APPLETON DELEGATE AT TIDEWATER CONGRESS

Appleton was not represented at the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Congress in annual session in St. Paul Tuesday and Wednesday. Those interested in the movement were unable to attend and the city therefore had no one present. The meeting was an important one, however, and there is considerable local interest in its efforts to obtain a waterway from the Great Lakes to the ocean.

SECOND QUARTER IS STARTED AT LAWRENCE

The second quarter at Lawrence college began Tuesday, when the doors of Carnegie Library were thrown open for registration at 8 o'clock. This winter term will run until March 26, when a four day holiday will be given before the spring term commences.

Other than a few minor changes in schedule, the college curriculum remains practically the same as that of the first quarter. The majority of the courses continue at the same time. Classes began Wednesday morning.

There were two changes in the faculty Robert H. Hannum, instructor in composition, who was unable to teach last quarter because of illness returned to take charge of his classes. Mr. Elias, instructor in French, will not teach next quarter.

Anton J. Alesch of Escanaba, Mich., manager of the upper peninsula of Michigan territory for the Maytag Washing Machine Co., has returned to Escanaba after visiting his home here and attending conventions at Minneapolis, Minn., and Newton Iowa.

Mrs. Maud Pratt of Shell Lake and formerly of Appleton, is in the city for a visit.

CABINET UNEASY AS CHILDS PUTS VITROL IN PEN

Dignified Department Heads
Wonder Who Author Meant in Hot Magazine Article

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington — Richard Washburn Child arises to make the perfectly outrageous remark that cabinet members "are not all wise."

He makes it in print, too, to quite an audience, through the Saturday Evening Post. If he'd said that they're not "all-wise" it wouldn't have been so bad. Not all of them claim to be that.

But "all-wise" wasn't what he said or meant. He meant that not all members of the cabinet are wise men.

The cabinet members — in case you can't recall them all right off the reel — are:

Secretaries Kellogg, Mellon, Dwight Davis, Wilbur, Work, Jardine, Hoover and James J. Davis, respectively of the state, treasury, war, navy, interior, agriculture, commerce and labor department, Attorney General Sargent and Postmaster General New.

Whom, out of these ten, had Richard Washburn Child in mind? It's possible to guess some whom he certainly hadn't at any rate.

Secretaries Mellon and Hoover are conspicuously wise. Hoover is wise all round. Mellon is wise as a financier. You may not like all his ideas but he's mighty wise. Child assuredly didn't mean either of these two.

The two Davises, Work, Jardine and New are fully as wise as most folks.

Attorney General Sargent at least looks wise.

Out of what's left take your pick. Who says the Japanese haven't a sense of humor? The Osaka Mainichi runs a "questions and answers department" and the Japanese embassy has been translating some of the question and answers. The latter are rather original. A few samples read this way:

"K. K.—Sorry your answer has been delayed but I have been on a bat for several days. You ask why English publications so often use 'v' instead of 'w' in Russian names. How should I know? It's true, however. A name like Paderewsky, for instance, it should be pronounced Paderewski, and it is by the elite, of whom I am one. I see, too, that the Statesman's Year Book spells the Polish town of Lvov, "Lwow," which besides being hard to pronounce, is not at all dignified. Or isn't it?"

"D. X.—You have a watch with a luminous dial, but the luminosity is beginning to fade and you wish to learn how to restore it. You might get a piece of fish skin and hang it up in your house until it is about ready to walk out of itself. With it you could then touch up the figures a bit. This, however, might not be pleasing to the nose, unless yours is trained to negotiate effluvia."

"L. B. M.—A new arrival in Japan, you inquire how many Buddhist and Shintoist priests we have. There are 53,203 Buddhist and 14,742 Shintoist high priests. These are the latest figures I have but you'd better add on two years' worth, not forgetting to subtract the death rate from the birth rate. The Lord knows how many lesser priests there are, for I don't."

"S. U.—I assure you that you are not the only persons who would like to know if the United States ever will enter the League of Nations."

CEMETERY ASSOCIATION WILL MEET NEXT MONDAY

Members of Appleton Cemetery association will hold their annual meeting next Monday evening at the office of Joseph Koffend, Jr., secretary of the association in the Odd Fellows bldg. Officers and trustees will be elected for the year, reports read, and other routine business transacted.

STATE PLEDGED TO OCEAN CANAL

Blaine Declares Wisconsin Is Committed to Lakes to Ocean Waterway

St. Paul, Minn., (AP)—Wisconsin stands united behind the movement to improve the St. Lawrence River to permit ocean steamship travel to the head of the lakes. Governor John J. Blaine of Wisconsin, declared in a telegram to Governor Christman announcing his inability to attend the tidewater congress.

"Wisconsin," he wired, "stands united on the proposition and will aggressively promote the interests of the northwest. Moreover we believe these interests can be promoted without doing other sections any injustice."

"I am fully aware of the forces that are retarding development of lakes-to-ocean water transportation. When commerce can be shipped by rail to Atlantic ports, then by water through the Panama canal to Pacific ports cheaper than by the rail from the Mississippi valley to Pacific coast states, the northwest must put forth its power to hasten completion of waterways from lakes to ocean."

"The Natural water resources of the northwest can and will be utilized for happiness and prosperity of all and therefore the northwest asks for united action from all."

Governor Blaine said urgent official matters that cannot be postponed detained him in Madison.

CITY TRACTOR HAULS BUS OUT OF DITCH

The city's newly acquired grade-tractor was put to good use Tuesday morning when the smaller of the two blue motorbuses used on the city local line by Fox River Bus Co., went into a ditch on E. Wisconsin-ave near N. Duquesne. The vehicle skidded on the icy street and slid down off the roadway. The wheels could not gain traction enough to pull it back and all efforts were unavailing until R. F. Hackworthy, street commissioner, sent the tractor to the scene. The powerful machine was able to pull the bus out of its predicament so service could be resumed.

Postal Patrons Careful To Use Proper Addresses

Probably a great amount of confusion in the mails resulting from the enactment of new postal regulations was obviated this Christmas season by the timely warnings issued by the Appleton postoffice to its patrons on city and rural letter routes and to possessors of postoffice lock boxes.

While other postoffices report an avalanche of poorly addressed and insufficiently stamped mail, one office of a city of the size of Appleton having about 5,000 pieces of "doubtful" mail, Appleton experienced no extraordinary trouble. The increase in the unaddressed and faultily addressed mail was merely in proportion to the general increase of holiday mail. Hardly more than 100 pieces of unaddressed mail are posted here weekly. The total of so-called "doubtful" mail this holiday season did not amount to more than 700 to 800, according to Herman G. Franck, assistant postmaster. Still the amount of such mail is more than warranted. He had expected much confusion on account of the new postage rates, but this was more or less prevented by the simple notices. "Shop and mail before Christmas, place a 2-cent stamp on each Christmas and New Year's card; wrap parcels securely, address mail plainly and include street and number, place your name and address on all mail to prevent its going to the dead letter office, have parcels insured against damage, mail may be marked 'Do not open until Christmas'; there will be no delivery of mail on Christmas day."

New Doors in Theatre
Patrons of the Fischers Appleton Theatre need no longer fear that they will catch colds and have chills from a draft which formerly struck their feet while attending performances at the theatre. Large French doors have been installed at the end of each aisle thus eliminating the possibility of the cold coming in from the lobby each time the outer doors were opened.

CHICAGO WON'T REFORM
Chicago has no intention of stopping its theft of lake water. Admitting the diversion is lowering the levels, it insists on continuing the practice irrespective of its effects on lake navigation. Chicago has no interest in lake navigation that is superior to its interest in lake water for sewage disposal and power purposes. Its advocacy of the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway is, of course, a blind. It has no interest in that project either, except as it serves to protect its steal.

All of these purposes and facts are boldly proclaimed in its answer to the suit brought by the lake states to compel it to stop its unlawful diversion of lake water. The city has put its cards on the table, and it is going to take what water it wants from Lake Michigan regardless of how it affects any other interest, provided it can bamboozle congress into the support of its claim or can win in the courts through the stratagem of skilled attorneys. No stone is to be left unturned. It does not matter what the lake states submit in support of their stand, it will be disputed by Chicago. Chicago would even go so far as to argue that the shipping on the Great Lakes is not worth the maintenance of any certain level. It will twist, distort and falsify facts that are self-evident. It is not going to stop anything to gain its point.

Chicago has drawn into its conspiracy against the lake states a few of the Mississippi valley states. It is indifferent to any interest but its own, and contemptuous of others' rights as well. It has the advantage over the lake states in that it has a highly concentrated organization which knows what it wants and will spend any amount of money necessary to gain its ends through propaganda and legal and political assistance. Unless the lake states are prepared to act together, to employ the best attorneys the country affords and to meet Chicago on its own ground, they are apt to wake up some fine morning and find that they have been outwitted.

The fight over diversion of lake water is one of the most important interior controversies of our history. A generation or two ago the suggestion of impairing the navigability of the Great Lakes by reducing their levels for the greedy or selfish purposes of one of their ports would have been dismissed as preposterous. Chicago, living in an atmosphere of conspiracy, fraud, blackmail and banditry, has educated itself to a new conception of its importance that arrogantly defies the national trust imposed upon congress to preserve this great natural highway of commerce for the benefit of the country at large. Thus far have we advanced in recent years in our disrespect for law, established institutions and the rights of others.

THE MOSUL DISPUTE
The Turkish government has decided it is not in a position to undertake a war with Great Britain over the Mosul award. It is a wise thing for Turkey that it is not in this position. There could be but one outcome of such a conflict and an unnecessary shedding of blood.
The Mosul dispute has been decided equitably, so far as the world can judge, and in accordance with stipulations freely entered into between Turkey and Great Britain, in which both agreed to submit the case to the League of Nations. It is better for the world, too, that Turkey should be out of Iraq and Mosul than in it; except among its own races, the Turk government is unfit to rule. It has demonstrated this through the centuries, and it is no different in this respect today than it was long ago.

Still, our anti-League and isolation press weep tears at the bier of the Turk's loss of Mosul. A month ago it was its opinion that a decision by the League committee adverse to Turkish demands would mean certain war. That was a wolf cry and made to discredit the League of Nations. The League acted fearlessly and as it should have acted, and of course there is to be no war. There was no likelihood of war at all. It was the talk of the anti-League press and its special correspondents.

Now, the same press is apologizing for Turkey's inability to make war, and sobbing over the injustice she has suffered. These sorrowing souls would do well to remember the countless assaults of Turk atrocities on the civilized conscience and restrain their tears. The more Turkey is confined the less of a troublemaker she will be, but quite aside from this, the fairness of the Mosul award is pretty well established.

THE PRESIDENT IS RIGHT
President Coolidge has asked congress for a special appropriation of $50,000 to pay the expenses of delegates he wishes to send to the preliminary conference called by the League of Nations to consider land disarmament. With the request he sends a message, which no unprejudiced person can read without subscribing to 100 per cent.

As the president points out, the conference about to be held is entirely of a preparatory nature. It can commit the United States to no program or action. It is designed merely to discuss the question of calling a formal conference to reduce land armaments, provided a mutually agreeable basis for this purpose can be reached. It is for the United States to say after it attends this conference and the agenda is drawn up whether it wishes to subscribe to it or not. That will be for congress and the president to determine.

The first meeting being of a preliminary character, there can be no reason why the United States should refuse to attend. In all honor it is bound to attend. It has advocated a policy of minimum armaments throughout its history; its purposes are peaceful. It wishes to see Europe and the world relieved of the heavy military burdens that are weighing them down and are responsible for much social unrest and economic distress. All its professions, all its interests, all its aims, moral, political and economic, are identified with the ends this conference is called to serve. DEADLIER?
Horses are deadlier than automobiles, reports the Automobile Club of western France. Its figures show that between 1922 and 1926 there were more deaths in western France due to accidents to horse drawn vehicles than to automobiles.

This may be very true. But the old horse and buggy still has one argument in its favor.
When a young man is taking his sweet heart riding in an automobile he can't wrap the reins around the whip socket and devote all of his attention to her.

SILKEN RUNS
Is there no real way of blocking pesky runners in a stocking? That's a question every girl would like to know. Oftentimes when first they wear a pair just steps right out to team, and a runner's very shortly on the go.
Though they pay a pretty penny for their stockings, there's not any girl who feels she's absolutely safe and sound. For they've can tell what minute, little stairways will be in it just to work their merry way up from the ground.
Gee, it really seems a pity, when they could look neat and pretty, for a pair of hose to open in a run. For the best of friends are parted, when a bloomin' runner's started, as their usefulness to girls is quickly done.
Course it's tough on girls who wear 'em, when the little runners tear 'em, and I offer up my sympathy—but still, there are two sides to the story, and I really feel more sorry for the husband or the dad who pays the bill.

THE CAPILLARY CIRCULATION
The tone of the arteries, that normal and essential state of partial contraction of their muscular coat which maintains the blood pressure and the circulation of blood, is controlled by the vasomotor branches of the sympathetic (autonomic or self governing) nervous system. This tone is least manifest about the aorta (great artery) and other large arterial trunks, which have comparatively little muscle in their walls, and most manifest in the very smallest arterial twigs, the arterioles, with walls composed almost entirely of involuntary muscle.

As the arteries branch their size steadily diminishes, though their total cross area becomes much larger than that of the great artery itself, and so the rapidity of the blood current is greatest in the large main trunks and diminishes as the channel branches and widens unlike the current in a river. It takes an average of 20 to 25 seconds for the blood to complete the circuit of the circulation; the rate of flow is about a foot a second in the large trunk vessels; it is only about an inch in a whole minute through the finest terminal arterioles.

The arterioles ultimately branch into microscopic tubes whose walls contain only a single layer of involuntary muscle cells and a delicate lining of endothelial cells; these ultimate arterioles are only 1-800 inch in diameter. Then they lose even the last thin layer of muscle and become microscopic channels surrounding the tissue cells, mere spaces between the fibres or cells of the organ or tissue, and these channels of spaces are called capillaries. The capillaries are, say 1-3000 inch in diameter, which makes the capillaries a rather snug fit for the red blood corpuscles to meander through, since the corpuscles have a diameter of 1-3200 inch, and still more so for the white corpuscles, for they have a diameter of 1-2500 inch, but the white corpuscles have the happy faculty of squeezing or oozing through much narrower spaces than that.

The pink or fleshy flush of your cheeks or finger tips is imparted by the blood in the capillaries. Press gently upon the finger tip with a glass and the blood is driven out of the capillaries. An instrument based on that observation measures the capillary blood pressure, which in the finger tips is nearly half the pressure in the arteries.

Of course the capillaries have no muscular coat and hence no power to contract, such as the arteries and arterioles have. They have only elasticity, but no tone. The blood passes through the capillaries very slowly, lingering there longer than in all the rest of the circulation, and the capillaries average only 1-50 of an inch in length.

In the capillaries the important business of the circulation is transacted. There the blood delivers to the body cells the oxygen the red corpuscles have carried from the air in the lungs, and takes on a load of carbon dioxide to carry back to the lungs.

All these details may be seen by the student of physiology when the web of a live frog's foot is examined under the microscope.

From the capillaries, the blood passes on into the smallest venules, then into the larger veins and eventually back to the right side of the heart to be pumped through the lungs again.

The veins will be the subject of the next talk in this series.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Protein Values
Please tell me if the protein in milk, cheese and eggs is as assimilable for man as the protein in meat? Could they be used as a substitute for meat?
(F. S.)
Answer—Yes. Yes.

Healing Rupture
Please let me know if a rupture of 12 years' standing can be healed without an operation by wearing some kind of a support or applying some kind of medicine? (A. S.)
Answer—No. Only humbugs purport to heal rupture by such means. The only reasonable chance for a cure lies in undergoing the operation.

Are Mike Robes Germans?
What causes the noise called rals in a tubercular lung? (T. E. Bug.)
Answer—Rals are not noisy. They are adventitious sounds heard in various abnormal conditions of lungs and bronchial tubes. I can't see how it would benefit anybody's health to know what causes sounds which nobody but a doctor ever hears.

Q. Is it more work to pump up a tire when it is not jacked up? J. W. B.
A. It is harder work for the weight of the car has to be lifted with each stroke of the pump.

Q. What is balloon hopping? M. E.
D.

A. Balloon jumping is a new sport in England. A small balloon not quite buoyant enough to lift a man clear off the ground is attached to his body by a suitable harness. A slight push of his feet will then send him some distance into the air and even make it possible for him to jump over a small house. Obstacle races are arranged.

Q. What percentage of the factories of France were destroyed during the War? W. W. H.

A. At the time of the armistice it was found that 20,603 factories in northern France had suffered damage, as follows:—Works completely destroyed, 4488; works plundered, 6376;
works damaged (capable of further use after repairs), 9741. The ravaged area was principally in the north and northeast and comprised about 30 per cent of French industry. The territory before the war produced 35 per cent of the sugar output of the country; 50 per cent of the coal; 63 per cent of the steel; 81 per cent of the textiles, and 92 per cent of the iron ore.

Q. Where was "The Raven" written?
M. B. K.
A. Edwin Markham says that "The Raven" had been composed some time before 1847 at a country homestead whose site is now occupied by a factory on 84th Street between Amsterdam Avenue and Broadway, New York. The homestead was owned by Patrick Brennan who in the summer of 1843 received as guests Poe and his wife and his mother-in-law.

Q. How many bells are there in the new carillon of the park Avenue Baptist Church in New York, and how do they range in size? P. D. L.

A. There are 23 bells in the carillon.
The largest weighs fifteen pounds and has a diameter of seven inches, and the smallest weighs approximately nine and one-quarter tons and has a diameter of 58 inches.

Q. Did we have an unsinkable ship during the World War? A. D. S.

A. William T. Donnelly, a member of the wartime Government commission that considered various plans for making ships unsinkable, devised a scheme that was tried out on a number of vessels, including one that crossed the Atlantic. This ship was torpedoed and sunk, but it was claimed that this was due to the manner in which it was loaded. It remained afloat for 23 hours before it sank.

Q. How long has the organ been in use? E. N. W.

A. Organs have been extant since the fifth century. It is probable that the instruments then consisted of a small number of pipes—not more than ten or twelve, and the organ was held on the player's lap. As early as about 900 A. D. an organ consisting of about 400 pipes was erected at Canterbury.

PACKING THE HOUSE OF SEVEN GABLES

While visiting Salem, Mass., a few years ago I took the opportunity to go to the narrow little street paved with uneven cobble stones—it would be called an alley in most cities—where the House of Seven Gables stands. Almost anybody who ever visits Salem perhaps has a natural curiosity to see the house that is supposed to have been the original for Hawthorne's famous story.

For some reason I did not take advantage of the opportunity to enter the house—for a consideration—and so I did not see the interior. One reason was fear of disillusionment. Experience has taught me that if you want to preserve your sense of awe of places or scenes in history or literature do not visit them. I did not care to take a chance of spoiling the mental picture of the interior of the House of Seven Gables built up by the wizardry of Hawthorne through seeing the actual interior. That kind of experience is almost invariably disappointing, just as it is almost always disappointing to meet in the flesh a writer whose work you worship.

JULIAN ADMITS IT
And now Julian Hawthorne, the son of the author of "The House of Seven Gables," comes forward with the information that the house in Salem is a fake and that his father no more had it in mind than he had the White House in Washington in mind. Millions of people have visited the place and have paid their fee to look through the rooms where the drama of the story was supposed to have played itself out, and probably millions more will do the same thing. Julian Hawthorne suggests that they are getting no more for their money than people get who buy antique furniture made in Grand Rapids which some clever dealer has given the appearance of age by drilling worm holes in it.

To quote Julian Hawthorne: "The idea is amusing of the son of Hawthorne going through the fake House of Seven Gables incoincidentally and letting the 'nymphs' who make money out of this 'literary shrine' explain all the shrine's 'epitaphs' to him. It must have been a sport worth more than the entrance fee. He does not say whether he kept up the comedy to the end; it must have taken unusual stamina not to make his identity known."

Julian Hawthorne quotes a detailed description written of the House of Seven Gables by Hawthorne himself and he compares this with the house in Salem out of which somebody each year makes a neat sum from literary pilgrims. There is comparatively little resemblance between the description and the real house. The only resemblance is that both houses have seven gables, but there are many other houses that have that.

Making literary or historical shrines pay dividends has become a real business. And for purposes of commercializing a historical or literary character it is not necessary to have real places or things; usually fakes will do quite as well. Most people who visit such places have not read the book in the first place and they go there merely because the guide book says it is the correct thing to do. Or they have vague memories of Paul Revere or Betsy Ross from school histories and they feel a little thrill when they visit the actual houses where these worthies are supposed to have lived.

"For many the kind of thing is a substitute for reading. For such the fake does the business about as well as the real thing."

ARE GREAT THINKERS EFFICIENT CHAUFFEURS?

From The Atlantic City Union.
What sort of a chauffeur would Emerson or Socrates or the immortal mystics or Napoleon or Wordsworth have made? Would any of the philosophers, noted professors and great thinkers have been or be, if now living, safe and sane automobile drivers?

The psychologist answers an emphatic No! Because the minds of such men are usually preoccupied. The thinker, the dreamer and the schemer are said to lack that co-ordination of mind and muscle which is essential in the operation of a motor vehicle.

Under existing traffic conditions and prevailing speeds, drivers who divert their minds from the business of driving and their eyes from the road ahead are the cause of many accidents. Modern motoring demands concentration on subjects, foreign to his driving is probably a greater traffic menace than the driver who is incapable of concentration.

Herein many find the most lamentable drawback of motoring. Watching the road and the "other fellow" forbids watching the scenery. Concentration on driving makes conversation difficult and unsatisfactory. There is a stress and strain in driving carefully which prohibits relaxation at the wheel. And many drivers find motoring conducive to thinking and relaxation. If the first law of nature and some hundreds of man-made laws permitted it.

WARNS AUTOISTS
TO GET PERMITSOrder our Car License Plates
Now, McCarty Advises Automobile Owners

Kaukauna—Chief of Police R. H. McCarty issued a warning Tuesday to people owning automobiles in Kaukauna that the 1926 licenses are due and it is time to send for them.

"All people owning automobiles know that the law says that licenses are due on Jan. 1 and they should get them themselves accordingly. If they send for the licenses at once they will get good service but if they wait until the latter part of January there will be such a rush at the department at Madison that it usually takes from two weeks to a month to issue a license, and this year it will be especially slow owing to the new title law, which goes into effect this year," said the chief.

The police department will issue police permits again this year but the type of card which was issued last year has been abolished. Instead, a group of steel plates of the same color as the '26 license plates, which will bear a number and the name Kaukauna and will be issued to owners on application if the applicants show a receipt indicating his license has been applied for. The department also is assisting motorists here by filling application blanks for licenses.

The new police permit will cost the applicant $1 of which 75 cents will be refunded upon the return of the plate.

The council voted to send Albert Gesse, street superintendent, to the good roads convention in Chicago next week, at the city's expense.

Several propositions dealing with the city's pauper list were disposed of. Most cases were turned over to the pauper committee, as is custom.

at a big meeting in Two Rivers Wednesday, Jan. 13. The meeting is sponsored by the Lions club of that city, with the cooperation of the Rotarians, Women's league and school children.

INVITE PUBLIC TO VISIT OFFICE OF "U" DIVISION

Entire Staff Will Be on Hand
Saturday to Meet People of Appleton

Appleton people will have a chance Saturday afternoon and evening to become acquainted with the organization which will conduct the extension office of the University of Wisconsin here, since that time has been set aside as a special visitation period. The entire staff consisting of Chester C. Allen, district manager, L. M. Garrow and W. H. Liesch, field representatives and Miss Gladys Sanders, office secretary, will be on hand to meet anybody who comes.

The office of district No. 2 was moved here last week from Oshkosh and will be conducted hereafter at room 222 of the Insurance Bldg., Appleton is more centrally located for the work that is being done.

Mr. Allen invites the public to call Saturday, especially those interested in the work of the extension division. The staff will welcome persons interested in classes or correspondence courses in the subjects offered by the university and will be glad to explain all about them and offer suggestions and advice.

Monday was the first day of actual business here and the time was devoted to a staff conference to outline the work in the new division center. A number of persons called to ask about courses.

The field staff is not in the office every day but information can be obtained there at any time. The division makes it a policy, however, to keep the office open each Saturday afternoon and evening especially for those who seek to confer about courses. Some members of the general staff will be on hand at those times to answer questions and enroll students.

COUNTY HEALTH BOARD WILL MEET WITH NURSE

START ON 1926 PAVING PLANS

Council Will Inspect Drawings — Wisconsin-ave Not in 1926 Program

Paving plans for N. State and S. Cherry-st from the bridge to Winnebago-co line will be placed before the common council for inspection at its regular meeting at 7:30 Wednesday evening by R. M. Connelly, city engineer. He also expects to have drawings ready for widening Oneida and Appleton-sts in the congested district. Plans also are drawn for Wisconsin-ave paving but it is understood this work is not to be done in 1926.

It is possible that the city and Winnebago-co will make a joint contract for paving the south outlet of Cherry-st bridge. Mr. Gustin of Green Bay, office engineer of the division headquarters of Wisconsin highway commission, was here Tuesday morning to confer with Mr. Connelly and Mayor John Goodland, Jr., concerning the project. He announced that O. C. Rollman, state division engineer, is pushing this matter to completion so that paving can commence real early in the spring.

The council also will discuss the Langsdorf-Meyer Co. building purchase and the acquiring of land for a diagonal street to the junction.

$108,000 BALANCE IN CITY TREASURY AS YEAR ENDS

MAYOR HAPPY OVER ECONOMY IN OPERATION

City in Splendid Financial Condition as It Starts New Year

General fund $108,347.96

This item appearing at the top of the list of balances on Jan. 1, 1926 in the report of F. E. Bachman city treasurer, made Mayor John Goodland Jr., a happy man when he arrived at his office Monday morning. It was quite different from the situation of other years, when the city was behind and had to borrow money to pay the expenses for the far end of the year and until tax money began coming in.

"This pleases me immensely," declared the mayor in commenting on the report. "I have been working for that condition for a long time and now to have accomplished it. That is the way city affairs always should be run. We ought to have a balance in the treasury for emergencies. Now if anything serious goes wrong we will have funds when we can use them."

"It is my intention to keep the treasury in a healthy condition. Of course there is a temptation to spend money for improvements, and other things when the city is flush but I will appeal to the council to be conservative and exercise as much economy as possible."

The total balance in all funds on Jan. 1 was $122,261.20. The report of Mr. Bachman shows the year closed with these balances: General fund $108,347.96, high school $6,568.86, junior high school operating account $10,326.13, vocational school $10,496.87, library $1,712.14, firemen's pension $26,487.92, police pension $6,131.99, park board $8,825.97, waterworks $94,130.72, minor high school fund interest $107.30, waterworks reserve $4,163.29, waterworks interest $2,917.50, taxes collected on 1926 lots $41,471.26.

With two large overdrafts drawn against it, the general fund balance on Jan. 1 would be somewhat less than the cash record shows. Payment for the Johnson bridge work and Woodward alley opening was included in the December orders but the money had not been withdrawn. The balance therefore will be above $100,000.

General fund receipts during December were $38,999.32, which covered all large tax payments collected by the city covering public utility improvements. The total revenue in all funds for the month was $218,262.92.

Disbursements amounted to $117,011.88, including $71,853.04 from the general fund and $45,173.24 from the waterworks fund.

GARAGE MEN QUALIFY AS EXPERT FIRE FIGHTERS

Fire caused by spark from a welding apparatus at the Automotive Repairing and Welding company, 116 S. Superior st., about 5:20 Tuesday afternoon, started underneath an automobile owned by the Appleton Wrecking company. The blaze however was extinguished before it had a chance even to scratch the paint. The automobile had begun leaking and a spark from the welding ignited the gasoline. A chemical outfit in the shop was used immediately while a call was sent for the fire department. The chemical kept the flames from spreading until the firemen extinguished the last of the blaze.

CHAPTER NO. 3

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BARBARA HAWLEY, 25, after teaching school three years, decides to go into newspaper work in order to see life.

When her fiancé, BRUCE REYNOLDS, she breaks with him and gets a job on the Appleton Telegraph, of which ANDREW McDERMOTT, a close friend of her father, before his death, is managing editor.

Bruce makes an attempt at reconciliation, which Barbara rejects, insisting she must live her own life.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER III

Apparently the work of the newspaper office had been in swing for hours. There was the same buzz of telegraph machines, the same running about, the same atmosphere of tense activity that Barbara had observed the day before.

Nobody looked at her this time. She went through the swinging gate to the enclosure which she thought must be the reporters' headquarters, and stood uncertainly beside a rickety back track. While she stood there, the woman who had looked at her with unfriendly eyes the day before, came in briskly and took her place at her desk.

She cleared it off, revealing a sign that said "Society."

It seemed to Barbara that she stood for centuries rooted to the spot. Then the homely youth whom she had noticed before, brushed past her on his way to the mechanical department, with such speed that Barbara staggered against the corner of a desk and would have fallen if someone had not put his hand on her arm.

She looked around, to find herself face to face with a man of possibly 30, whose eyes beamed upon her and whose unshaven face was curved into lines of friendliness.

"Just escaped a bad smash-up there," he said, beaming more broadly. "Accidents are right in my line, you know. I'm the police reporter, Bob Jeffries."

Barbara smiled at him, one of her jangling, unexpected smiles, out of the midst of deep seriousness. "Thank you," she said. "I should not have been standing in the way."

"That's not the way to talk in this hang-out," said Bob. "On your toes always and ready to fight for your rights. I beg your pardon, but who are you, anyway?"

"I'm Barbara Hawley," was the reply. "And I've come to work on your paper."

Bob Jeffries whistled. "You don't exactly look it," he said. "But so much the better."

Barbara wondered what he meant. She looked around anxiously for any other woman in the office. There was only the society editor, who was dressed much as Barbara herself.

"Who hired you?" asked Bob. "What kind of work are you going to do?"

"McDermott hired me," she answered. "He said something about interviewing President Coolidge and sweeping out the office."

Bob laughed. "Well, I can tell you what that means—obituaries, birth notices, sob stuff, helpful hints and war correspondence, provided there should be a war."

Barbara laughed too. But she was not sure what the joke was.

Just then she heard her name called in a loud and terrifying tone of voice. It was Wells, the city editor, who had told her the day before that there was no place for her on the staff.

Wells was looking over his glasses, searching the office for her. Barbara hurried to the desk.

"Oh," he said, in rather surly tone. "So you're here. What do you know about Alfred Noyes?"

Barbara brightened. In this field she was at home. "A good deal," she replied.

"Take this stuff, then, and give us a story on him," said the city editor, handing her some notes and clippings from the morning papers.

Barbara grasped the papers and went back to Bob Jeffries. He promptly jerked a youngster out of a chair in front of a typewriter desk and bowed Barbara into it. The displaced youth only grunted.

Bob brought her some copy paper and, saying, "Double space your stuff and make it snappy," left her. She did not see him again for many hours.

She had no sooner settled to read the clippings than somebody called her again. This time Wells wanted her to take death notices over the telephone. She was ushered to a typewriter beside a telephone equipped with a hand receiver.

The next half hour was the worst that Barbara had ever experienced in her life. It seemed to her that every person in Appleton with a name full of consonants had died the day before. Again and again she asked for a respelling of the names, until in despair she guessed at them and put down the results.

She thanked heaven for the fact that she had learned something of typewriting by the touch system in college. Now and then she caught other reporters looking at her fingers curiously, but she had no time to wonder what was wrong.

At last the death notices were written, and she laid them on Wells' desk. Again she seated herself to write the article on Alfred Noyes.

The next interruption came when a farmer from up state made a call on the Telegraph and asked for a reporter to chronicle the fact that he had produced upon his farm a cornstalk 12 feet tall. The stalk itself was duly produced.

This, too, fell to Barbara's lot to write. It was not so bad, she thought, as obituaries.

Just before noon, Barbara was startled to find a tall woman dressed in taffeta and lace, towering over her. "I just want to talk to you, miss," said the visitor, in a throatening tone of voice. Barbara was bewildered.

"I came in to see why you put my daughter's wedding announcement down in the corner of your page, when Carmelita Hanks' wedding went right up top," continued the accuser.

Barbara gulped. The woman rushed on. "I ask you, have we been good subscribers of this paper for 20 years, or haven't we? There's no such thing as a square deal anywhere, seems to me when a paper you've bought for all that time plays you a dirty trick like that."

This was one phase of journalism for which Barbara had no preparation. She looked wildly around for reinforcements. She thought she caught a gleam of amusement in the eyes of the society editor.

But the gleam came too soon, for at the same moment Barbara's visitor caught sight of the sign on the society desk and abandoned Barbara to carry the war to higher quarters.

At 12:30 Jimmie, the homely youth who served as office boy and copy carrier, informed her that "if Miss Hawley was ready, Mr. Wells would like to have the Noyes story."

There was a slight tone of irony in the courteous language.

The Noyes story was laid on Mr. Wells' desk, in the original draft. Barbara had not had time to copy it as she intended.

She looked around, wondering when lunch time came. The office was full of reporters. Nobody seemed to be thinking about food, and nobody told her to run along and eat.

She busied herself about her desk, cleaning out some stuffed drawers, reading the files of the Telegraph. She was beginning to feel a profound respect for the commonplace columns of type that made up the paper.

Never before had she guessed what harrowing work went into the making of the sheet. She had always thought that papers just appeared in the evening on your porch.

As the afternoon wore away, Barbara wished heartily that somebody would give her something to do. The rest of the staff had drifted out of the office, and only Wells and the copywriters remained at their desks.

She decided that she would put on her hat and go out in search of food. As she started out, she saw the homely youth enter the office with a great stack of papers. He began laying one on each desk.

Barbara darted back into the room seized her copy and made for the elevator.

In the lobby downstairs she passed Bob Jeffries. He nodded pleasantly, and Barbara felt a glow of cheer in her heart.

Just around the corner was a sandwich shop. Barbara made her way to a seat at the counter, ordered a sandwich and a cup of coffee and spread the paper out before her.

She scanned the front page. There was no sign of her work.

On the second page, her hopes waned; on the fifth, they went out altogether. Then she found it, in a corner at the bottom of the stock quotations column. It read:

POET COMING
Alfred Noyes, English poet and former professor of poetry at Princeton University, will give a series of lectures at the public auditorium, beginning Nov. 1, under the auspices of the University Extension Club.

The waiter brought the sandwich just then. Barbara stared at the sandwich and pushed it away. Then she pushed the coffee away too. She stared at the page, but the words of the article were blurred.

Then she went through the pages rapidly again, looking for the story about the cornstalk that was 12 feet tall. It was not to be found.

Again she went through the sheets, this time looking for the death notices that she had tolled over. There they were, bravely displayed beneath a bold black head—"Obituaries."

The names with their showings of consonants made a brave showing. She gulped the coffee and paid her bill.

Entering the office of the Telegraph again, she found Wells standing beside a gigantic man with a heavy beard. Wells addressed her: "Miss Hawley, this is Morris Pattinham. He says you have published a story to the effect that he is dead."

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

RODENTS DESTROY TREES DURING WINTER MONTHS

"Mice and rabbits destroy thousands of dollars worth of young fruit trees every winter," says C. L. Kuehner of the horticulture department at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

According to this fruit specialist, trees under ten years old are most frequently injured. So far, the only satisfactory method of controlling this injury is by means of protectors.

He says that if protectors have not already been placed around the young trees, such should be done at once, as mice frequently start their work in the late fall and early winter months.

Kuehner recommends several kinds of protectors, which are commonly used for this purpose, namely—heavy roofing paper, which does not contain tar, or a wood veneer protector, as sold by nurseries and fruit supply houses.

However, he favors a galvanized wire of 1/4 inch mesh. While it is more expensive than the other two, he points out that it will last for many years, and does not have to be removed from the tree in the spring, as should be done with the paper and wood protectors.

The protectors should be placed around the trees in such a way that mice cannot get in from underneath, and at a height of about 30 inches, so that the entire trunk may be protected. If the wire mesh is used, he advises cutting the wire, in order that the protection formed will be four or five inches in diameter, to allow for several years' growth of the trunk.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. adv.

WILL BUY PLOW IF HIGHWAYS ARE CLOSED BY SNOW

Highway Commission Authorizes Brusewitz to Buy Apparatus if It Is Needed

Purchase of a new snow plow for the county highway department is a possibility, as the result of action taken by the county highway commission at its regular meeting Monday in the courthouse. The commission also took steps to bring about uniformity in lettering of county highways connecting with county trunk lines of adjoining counties.

A. G. Brusewitz, highway commissioner of Outagamie-co, was authorized to purchase a Wausau snow plow, in case this territory is visited with a severe snow storm. The county now has one snow plow, designed by Mr. Brusewitz. If the county department encounters heavy snow fall and blocked roads, it will have need of another plow, it was brought out. It would be attached to the second tractor of the department. It has Holt caterpillar tractor and is in the market also for another tractor. Meanwhile it is using a loaned Monarch until the coming Road Show in Chicago when purchase of a new one probably will be made.

ADJUSTABLE PLOW
The Wausau snow plow is manufactured by the Wausau Iron works, builders of the Cherry-st bridge in Appleton. It is a wedge shaped plow with wings that can be adjusted to varying heights and widths. The wings are about 5 feet high and are said to be capable of pushing through very bad drifts.

For the purpose of obtaining joint action on the lettering of inter-county trunk highways, the commission decided to invite the county highway committees of Brown, Shawano, Waupaca, Winnebago and Calumet to a meeting in the Appleton courthouse at 10 o'clock in the morning of Jan. 20. It remains for the state highway commission to determine what roads are to be on the county trunk systems, but the county committees will meet to suggest to the state board its wishes on the lettering of trunk lines that connect

Chickering

JONAS CHICKERING has been justly called "The Father of the Modern Piano," for in 1837 he perfected his epoch making invention of the full iron plate for grand pianos.

This invention proved to be the foundation of all modern piano construction and defined a new era in the history of piano-making.

Through the full century of its triumphant career, the Chickering has been chosen by the most famous musicians as the medium for their genius. Such great artists as Dohnanyi, Lhevinne, Mirovitch and Schnitzer use the Chickering not only for their concert work but also in their homes. They find in the smaller sizes the same rare qualities of tone that charm them in the Concert Grand.

Chickering prices from $875 to $2,500.

IRVING ZWILLER

Adventures Of The Twins

UNCLE RINGTAIL'S CAR

After lunch Mister Coon took his two nephews, Cornie and Cobble, out for a ride in his new racer.

He had bought a new racing car as yellow as a pumpkin and built in such shape that it looked more like a boat than an automobile.

But Mister Coon never intended to race and what was more, he didn't intend to have those youngsters racing either, he said. "The thing is, just drive slowly and enjoy the country and watch all the signs. If everybody would only watch the road there wouldn't be any trouble and there would be no more wrecks."

"Now watch me, boys," said their Uncle Ringtail as they got into the car. "First of all I put my foot on this little knob on the floor and fix this jagamack on the wheel—so. Then I press the knob with my foot and that starts the engine. Then I fix the thingamajig or I mean the jagamack back to where it was. Then I'm all ready to start."

"Yes, Uncle," said Cornie and Cobble watching with all their might.

"The next thing to do is to start the car. See this handle—how it wiggles? Well, I'm going to do something with it, but I can't move it where I want to until I press this big pedal in the floor down with my foot. Now, I can put the handle where I want it." And Uncle Ringtail pulled it gently toward him.

"Yes, Uncle," said Cornie and Cobble together.

"Now when I take my foot off the pedal the car will move," said the coon gentleman. "As I don't want it to move so suddenly and jerk our heads off, I shall take my foot off slowly, like this."

"Yes, Uncle," the little coons surprised to say. But they were so startled when the long yellow car started to move, they grabbed each other and held on tight. "Hoo-ee! We're moving," they cried.

"I have to move this handle three times," said Mister Ringtail Coon. "And each time I have to push the pedal down first. Watch me!"

So the little fellows watched, and by and by the car made no more noise, but rolled on smoothly as a lemon-pie out for a airing.

"Isn't this fine?" grinned Cornie. "Just whooping!" agreed Cobble. "Please go a little faster, Uncle."

"What does the little speedometer say?" asked Mister Coon.

"It says fifteen miles," said Cobble. "Well, I might go a little bit faster," said Mister Coon cautiously. "But very little. When it gets to twenty miles tell me."

"It's twenty now, Uncle," said Cornie. "No, it's twenty-two."

"Oh well, it's nice smooth road, and nobody's around so I guess it's all right," said Mister Coon. "Just so we don't go over twenty-five miles an hour."

"Hoo! Eeee!" cried Cobble. "Isn't it fine! I like to go fast, Uncle. Don't you, Cornie?" Uncle's up to twenty-five now. No, it's twenty-six.

"That's pretty near to twenty-five," said Mister Coon. "Just about the same thing."

"No, it's twenty-seven," said Cornie. "Uncle Ring, it's going twenty-seven miles an hour—no it's twenty-nine—now it's thirty. Oh, Uncle Ring, and you said—"

"Tut!" said Mister Coon. "I think the speedometer isn't working right. I'm going very slowly indeed!"

"Uncle Ring, it's thirty-five miles now," said Cobble Coon.

We quickly motored to the aviation field after Mr. Sartoris' luncheon and before we knew it we were aboard the three great passenger planes. "I shall have to plead ignorance," I said as I settled myself beside Mr. Sartoris in the first car to take off. "I did not know there were any passenger planes in this country of the type that flies the English Channel."

"There are no others," Mrs. Prescott. "These belong to me. One I am going to take with me on my yacht, and the others I have given to some buddies of mine who want to establish passenger service between New York and Chicago."

"Are you always as generous as that to your friends?"

"Not always, my dear lady. In fact, some people think I am quite selfish. But these men saved my life, one of them not only once, but twice, and although I do not consider my life any great prize, yet it's the only one I have, and perhaps I am better off than I would be had I died at that time."

"The men who are driving these cars are some buddies of mine, and they tested them very well in New York before I had them delivered here. However, we are making what is really the first trip."

It was awfully exciting. Ruth, some of the women were sea or rather air-sick, I suppose you call it, but I was all right. I remembered what Mother had written me concerning her trip across the channel and I wondered if she had had the same exhilaration I was having now.

We didn't talk very much—it was too thrilling. Jack was not in the ship with me; he went with the little widow in another one, and the last I saw of him he was helping her into the great not very carefully. Jack is always very susceptible, you know.

I think I must have slept most of the way, for when I opened my eyes it was twilight and we were sailing along beside a place near the sea. We landed not far from where the Atlantis was anchored, and again boarded a gas launch which was tied to the wharf. In a few minutes we were all on board of Mr. Sartoris' yacht at last.

Ruth, that boat is the most beautiful one I have ever seen. Mr. Sartoris must be one of the richest men in America.

Everyone was hungry and soon a gorgeous dinner was spread under the awnings out on the deck where it was still warm enough to eat comfortably.

"I should think you would be very lonely in this wonderful yacht dining alone completely out of sight of land," I remarked to my host.

"I am," he answered fervently; but he added; "I do not think, however, that I am as lonely on my own deck with nothing to look upon except the restless sea as I am in the midst of the crowd that I find in any big hotel dining room."

"I never feel so much alone as when I see people all about me bent on enjoyment in which I am not participating."

He bent a little closer as we stood by the rail.

HUSBAND SAYS HIS WIFE WAS IN WILD PARTY

Need Interpreter to Take Testimony in Divorce Suit
in Municipal Court

Suffering the alleged cruelty of his wife for several years, Carl Jesch, of Appleton, was still willing to effect a reconciliation and went to Chicago last August to persuade her to return to his home. He drew the color line, however, when he found her at a "wild, wild party" at which Negroes were among the guests. This was brought out in his divorce suit which was opened before Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Wednesday morning.

The trial was interrupted by the testimony of the sudden illness of Miss Margaret Hogan, the court reporter, Judge Berg then declared a recess in order to obtain a substitute reporter.

Jesch, a German, could not speak English fluently; therefore an interpreter was necessary. R. F. Bell of Appleton, formerly a professor of languages at Lawrence college, acted in that role. It was indicated that an interpreter would be necessary for Mrs. Jesch and other witnesses also.

The parties to the divorce action, both somewhat elderly, were married in Chicago Nov. 24, 1918. It was brought out that two years ago Mr. Jesch moved to Appleton, but, he complained, his wife refused to live with him here. Her alleged cruel and inhuman treatment, habitual drunkenness, unseemly conduct with persons of the opposite sex and her association with Negroes were the reasons why Mr. Jesch now wants the marriage dissolved.

Mrs. Jesch has no such intentions, however. She employed a lawyer to contest the action. She will ask for continuance of the marriage bonds and a certain amount for her support when she takes the witness stand which was expected to be Wednesday afternoon. She is represented in the trial by Attorney A. H. Krueger, while the plaintiff has Keller & Keller for his attorneys.

D. A. R. WILL SPONSOR NOTED MOTION PICTURE

The Appleton chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution is sponsoring a moving picture, "The Vanishing American" to be shown Jan. 25 to 29 at Fischers Appleton Theater. The funds derived from the sale of tickets will be used for patriotic purposes in this vicinity.

The picture tells the history of the American Indian from the time before the Spanish invasions until the present day. It shows how he was crowded from the fertile areas and then of his being called upon to help in the World War.

Quinn Martin of the New York World says: "It is one of the really great picture plays of all time and certainly from the standpoint of importance in an educational way, has not been equalled." "The Vanishing American" seems to me to be the most finished and believable piece of work ever woven into a picture play of such vast proportions.

NEW RECTOR AND VESTRY CONFER

The Rev. Henry S. Gately Takes Active Charge of Parish Here

The Rev. Henry S. Gately, who has just assumed charge as rector of All Saints Episcopal church, began laying his plans for the parish activities at a meeting of the vestry Tuesday evening. The Rev. and Mrs. Gately arrived here Saturday night from Missoula, Mont., their former place of residence, and the rector preached at the service Sunday morning. They are living temporarily at Hotel Northern until a new home for the rector and vestry is completed and the household goods arrive.

Plans for the annual meeting of the congregation were formulated by the rector and vestry. The date has not been set but the gathering will be held within a week or two so that delegates can be elected to the council of Ford du Lac diocese, which meets the latter part of the month. A reception is to be held for the Rev. and Mrs. Gately but the plans have not been formulated.

MISSIONARY GIVES ADDRESS ON INDIA

Neenah—India as I Found It. It was the subject of an interesting lecture given Tuesday evening before a large audience at First Presbyterian church by Sam Higginbotham, a missionary from India. The speaker told of intense suffering by natives for want of food when he first visited that country.

He then told of present conditions, which have been made much better by instruction in agriculture. He gave a report of his work among the people, their habits and manners. He told of the work the church is doing through its missionaries and the amount of work there still is to do. The chorus choir of the church gave a half-hour concert, preceding the talk by Mr. Higginbotham.

DANCING PARTY IN CELLUCOTTON BUILDING

Neenah—A dancing party Wednesday evening, will mark the completion of the five-story building erected for the Cellucotton Co. Tickets have been presented to every employee of Kimberly-Clark and Cellucotton plants in Neenah with request that he be present at the party. The dance will be held on the fourth floor of the building which has been handsomely decorated for the occasion. Melorin orchestra will furnish the music for dancing which will start at 8:30 and continue until 12:30.

T. & L. COUNCIL WILL SELECT NEW QUARTERS

Choice of a new meeting place will be discussed by Appleton Trades and Labor Council at a special meeting called by F. E. Bachman, president, for 8 o'clock Friday evening in Trades and Labor hall. He has requested the presidents and secretaries of all unions to be present and officers of all other organizations using the present quarters.

The council has had its meeting place for many years on the third floor of the P. W. Woolworth Co. building but the concern intends to remodel the structure in the spring and therefore has notified the officers to vacate by Feb. 1.

Inspection will be made of Castle hall, above Third St. looking store. This place is available because the Knights of Pythias lodge bought the old First Methodist church for a clubhouse and will be moving out soon.

SUPT. ROHAN TALKS AT DENTAL CLUB MEETING

Appleton Dental Study club will have a luncheon at 12 o'clock Thursday noon at Hotel Northern. Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, will talk about the dental clinic to be conducted by the Kiwanis club. There will be discussions on methods of examining teeth of school children.

Discuss School Plan
Plans for the remainder of the school year were discussed Monday night at the 1925 meeting of the student council of Appleton high school. The council decided to hold a school Valentine party on Feb. 13 and also to sponsor some event by which it can aid the school fund in paying for its new uniforms. Several other regular business matters were discussed.

SEEK TO INCLUDE CALUMET-CO PLAT WITHIN APPLETON

Green Bay Man Buys 118-acre Farm Which Is to Be Platted into Lots

Final transfer of a 118-acre farm at the corner of S. Oneida-st and E. Calumet-st, just outside of the city limits was made Wednesday morning by Agnes Murray as individual and executrix of the estate of Sarah A. Murray to F. R. Bucholz, Green Bay wholesale sub-divider and builder, at the office of Attorney Mark S. Catlin. Application will be made immediately to the city of Appleton to incorporate the property within the city and to construct sewers and other improvements. The property is in Calumet-co.

Preparation of the plat will be started this week and Mr. Bucholz expects to start his building program in the spring. The property has been in the possession of the Murray family for over fifty years. The corner fields were used by Barnum Bailey and Ringling circus last summer. The deal has been in progress for about four months, but due to difficulty in clearing the title, it was not possible to complete the transfer before.

DEATHS

FREDERICKS FUNERAL

Funeral services for Leik Fredrick, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Fredrick, 1032 S. Keweenaw, who died Tuesday morning, will be held at 1:30 Saturday afternoon from the home and at 2 o'clock from Zion Lutheran church. The Rev. Theodore Marth will conduct the services. Interment will be at Riverside.

WILLIAM F. MALLIET

William F. Malliet, 73, died at 10:30 Monday evening at his home in the village of Black Creek. He was born in Felush, Belgium on May 6, 1852 and came to this country at the age of 2 years settling at Bay Settlement. He was married Aug. 2, 1874, to Miss Melvina Burton at Bay Settlement. The couple located on a farm in the town of Maple Creek where they lived for four years. They then moved to Polar where they resided for 19 years and later moved to Bryant, where they were located for 18 years. Mr. and Mrs. Malliet lived at Bear Creek for the past nine years.

He is survived by his widow, eight sons and two daughters: Clarence, Abraham and Arthur Malliet of Jordan, Mont.; Mrs. Clara Carlson, Melvin, Benjamin and Delbert Malliet of Bryant, Frank of Doring, Mrs. Grace Keitel of Sheboygan and Ervin Malliet of Deer Creek; three brothers, Frank Malliet of Bear Creek, Jule of the town of Deer Creek and Joseph Malliet of Bay Settlement. Twenty-nine grandchildren also survive. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon from the home of F. Zachor, who will have charge of the services. Interment will be in the Danish cemetery in the town of Deer Creek.

WOOLWORTH CO. GIVES CITY DEED TO ALLEY

One rather pleasing announcement that will be made at the regular meeting of the common council Wednesday evening will be the fact that a deed for alley right-of-way has arrived here from the P. W. Woolworth company's New York office. The document conveys land to the city at the rear of the five-and-ten-cent store, E. College-ave, so that a jog in the alley between N. Oneida-st and N. Morrison-st will be removed. It will be necessary to tear down part of the store, but the city has assumed the cost in return for the grant of land. City officials are especially pleased over this transaction because it concludes a movement that has been going on for years.

APPLETON VETERANS AT M'COY FUNERAL

Colonel Hugh Pomeroy and Major Charles E. Green of Appleton, will attend the funeral of Major General Robert E. McCoy, of Sparta, who died in a Madison hospital Tuesday. Col. Pomeroy and Maj. Green were associated with the deceased in the Wisconsin National guard and in the Spanish American war, and Major Green also was associated with him in the World War. Both were warm personal friends of the general and were in the same brigade during the Spanish American war. This was the first brigade, first division, of the first army corps.

Private funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock in the late home at Sparta and public services will be conducted at 2 o'clock in the Sparta armory.

ROHAN DISCUSSES JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL PROBLEMS

Ways in which the new junior high school on the city street, the senior high school were brought out by Ben J. Rohan, superintendent of schools, in a two-hour talk at a meeting of Appleton high school faculty Monday afternoon. The meeting was the regular monthly affair and after the routine announcement and distribution of papers on reviews and final examinations, which will be held next week, to the teachers, Mr. Rohan gave his talk.

MARKET SHOWS UPWARD TREND

Closing Is Firm; Total Sales
Approximately 1,700,000
Shares

New York—(AP)—Reactionary tendencies were in evidence at the opening of Wednesday's stock market in continuation of Tuesday's general selling movement. Motors and high priced specialties, including Mack trucks, Chrysler, American Can, General Electric, White Motors and Baldwin, were conspicuously heavy, but there were a few off setting gains among the copper and southern railroad shares.

Renewed discussion or merger possibilities and favorable traffic reports aroused active bidding for Wash and Norfolk and western issues in the first half hour. The rest of the rail group, however, was sluggish with St. Paul preferred experiencing a sharp reaction and Illinois Central showing marked heaviness. Selling pressure was against the shares, the early losses in Chrysler, Dodge, White and Mack Trucks ranging from one to three points. Woolworth Pressed steel car and Matheson Alkali joined in the downward movement. The spotty appearance of the market was intensified by a resumption of buying in several specialties, resulting in gains of 3 to 4 points for American express, Jewell tea and General Electric. Foreign exchanges opened firm, with sterling fractionally higher at $4.84-11-16.

Individual issues, especially Pan American, United Cigar stores, south Porto Rico sugar and Dupont continued to exhibit considerable weakness, but the market in general turned upwards when heavy accumulation of several public utilities and various specialties began. A number of shares sold at their highest figures for a year or more including Columbia gas and electric, preferred Steel Car and general asphalt. Commercial solvents A rose six points and American express and Remington typewriter 5.

The renewal rate on call loans was reduced to 4 1/2 per cent.

The closing was firm. Total sales approximated 1,700,000 shares.
